Excerpts of the Activity:

Camarines Sur Polytechnic Colleges' "ORSEM," or Orientation Seminar, is a pivotal annual event dedicated to welcoming first-year students and preparing them for their college journey. The ORSEM 2025 was a dynamic, multi-day experience that blended essential institutional information with interactive, engaging activities. It was a thorough introduction to campus life, ensuring that new students felt informed and connected from the very start.

The preparation for this year's ORSEM was a collaborative effort between the Student Affairs and Services Office (SASO), CSPC – Supreme Student Council (SSC) and the CSPC – Creative Arts and Multimedia Society (CAMS). From July 26-28, 2025 these organizations worked together to produce an exciting promotional video featuring a diverse range of institutional and academic-based organizations. This initiative was designed to build anticipation and showcase the vibrant campus culture awaiting the new students. Following the video production, the "ORGBit: ORSEM 2025 Organizational Booth Fair" took place from July 31, 2025 to August 8, 2025 at the CSPC Grounds. This fair gave student organizations a platform to set up booths, introduce themselves, recruit new members, and highlight the numerous ways students could enrich their college experience by getting involved.

The main two-day ORSEM event, held on July 31, 2025 and August 1, 2025, was a comprehensive dive all about CSPC. Key officials from various departments led a series of crucial discussions. Students received an Institutional Overview from Mr. Franz Kiven B. Astibe, learned about Academic Policies and Guidelines from Dr. Arlene O. Malaya, and were informed about Student Support, Scholarship, and Services by Dr. Jay L. Luzon. Other sessions covered essential topics such as Guidance Services (Ms. Ma. Kiara Sapinoso), Production and Auxiliary Services (Dr. Lalaine M. Lastrollo), Student Internet Services (Mr. Rey T. Cortez), and Health and Environmental Management Services (Mr. Mark Adrian J. Manzano). Students also learned about Library Services (Mr. Yves Aristeo A. Febres), Gender and Development (Mr. Alvin Franco A. Agtarap), Safety and Security (Mr. Dan Randolph P. Garcia), and the NSTP Orientation (Mr. Christian K. Puso). These sessions were not merely lectures; they were complemented by interactive performances, games, and opportunities to win prizes, making the information more digestible and fun.

Following the main institutional ORSEM, the SSC extended its support to college-based orientation seminars, offering new students more specific and localized information. These were held on different days for various colleges and campuses: August 4: Buhi Campus, August 5: College of Health Sciences, August 6: College of Arts and Sciences, and College of Engineering and Architecture, August 7: College of Computer Studies, and August 8: College of Technological and Developmental Education, and College of Hospitality, Tourism, and Business Management.

The ORSEM 2025 concluded on a high note, successfully equipping a new batch of students with the knowledge, resources, and a strong sense of community needed to begin their academic journey at CSPC with confidence. It was a well-organized and impactful event that set a positive tone for the upcoming academic year.

Benefits Derived:

- Key Information. Students learned the basic rules of the institution, academic guidelines, and all the support available to them. This will help them succeed in their classes and use important services like guidance counseling, the library, and scholarships.
- Building a Sense of Community. Through the organizational fair and fun activities, ORSEM helped new students meet each other and find groups to join. This helps them feel less alone and gives them a way to make friends, get involved in school, and build their skills.
- Personalized Support. The separate orientations for each college gave students specific information about their classes, instructors, and unique programs. This special attention helped them feel more comfortable and ready for their chosen field of study.
